Allure Update: 08/02/2020 by Computer Hope Subscript can refer to one of the following: 1. Abstract in sub, subscript refers to words or characters that are half the height of a standard character and printed lower than other texts. Here is an example of a subscript text, which shows Subscript text halfway below the baseline of Normal Text. Normal subscript text To create a subscript in Microsoft Word, highlight the text you want to sub script, then click the subscript button, which is the X2 option in the Font section. Tip You can also highlight a section of text, then press Ctrl (equal sign) to change it to subscript. To create a subscript in Microsoft Excel, follow these steps. Click on the cell containing the text you want to make subscript. In the formula bar, highlight the character you want to define as subscript. Tap Ctrl-1 to open the Format Cells window. Click on the checkbox for the Subscript option and click OK. Note that subscript characters are displayed in the cell, but not in the formula bar. To sub script the text in HTML, use the tags as shown in the example below. Normal Text Subscript Text In addition to using subscript for its visual properties, there are other places that it can be used. List of the number of atoms in a chemical formula. For example, with water, H2O indicates that there are two hydrogen atoms and one oxygen atom. In mathematics, a subscriptum can describe different versions of the same variable or used to designate a member of the sequence or set. 2. In computer programming, a subscript is a number representing an element of a table. For example, with example[3] or $example[3] the [3] is the sub script of the example table.
